Re: Indian Village Subdivision

Dear Mr. Platt:

I finally got around to checking out the attached tax bill which I never could tie to a particular piece of land. According to what I found in the county Auditor's Office they subtracted the total acreage as shown on the record plat from the acreage shown in the deed by which Package Homes got the land. I don't know how the street right-of-ways were figured but I checked the boundary calls of the original deed and the recorded lots and they didn't quite agree. I would guess the difference was in actual survey against the old deed description.

As near as I can figure the tax bill was figured by arithmetic and does not describe a real piece of land. All the rest is accounted for. We get tax bills for all the land in the recorded subdivision including the un-numbered lot in the front.

The Auditor said that if you would stop in and certify that the above was the case, that is the difference between the original description and the survey they, would cancel the bill. I doubt they will refund the taxes already paid over the years. Anyway I don't plan to pay any more in any case.

If it is not too much trouble would you check it out sometime when you are at the Court House?

Thanks for your trouble,

Stuart Faber

Re: Indian Village Subdivision

Dear Mr. Platt:

I finally got around to checking out the attached tax bill which I never could tie to a particular piece of land. According to what I found in the county Auditor's Office they subtracted the total acreage as shown on the record plat from the acreage shown in the deed by which Package Homes got the land. I don't know how the street right-of-ways were figured but I checked the boundary calls of the original deed and the recorded lots and they didn't quite agree. I would guess the difference was in actual survey against the old deed description.

As near as I can figure the tax bill was figured by arithmetic and does not describe a real piece of land. All the rest is accounted for. We get tax bills for all the land in the recorded subdivision including the un-numbered lot in the front.

The Auditor said that if you would stop in and certify that the above was the case, that is the difference between the original description and the survey they, would cancel the bill. I doubt they will refund the taxes already paid over the years. Anyway I don't plan to pay any more in any case.

If it is not too much trouble would you check it out sometime when you are at the Court House?

Thanks for your trouble,

Stuart Faber
